

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

PREFACE.

Amongst the numerous books which have been written as Guides to the Civil Service, I have not been able to find one which contains substantial information on all the cardinal topics without which the 'Guide' must necessarily fail in its The rules as to the limits of age within which only Candidates can be appointed, the prescribed subjects of examination, copious specimens of Examination Papers which have been actually set, and the classified salaries of the various offices, besides incidental points, have all been given with more or less of fullness and accuracy, but, as far as I am aware, in not one instance, as a whole, and in some cases in only a fragmentary manner. I have ventured therefore to add another 'Guide.' in which I have endeavoured to state all that, and no more than, a candidate may expect to know as to the conditions of the Full information will be found on the four abovenamed heads, with lithographed specimens of official handwriting, and extracts from the tables of marks published in the Civil Service Commissioners' Reports, from which Candidates viii PREFACE.

may form some opinion as to the degree of merit which will enable them to succeed in cases of competition. This is preceded by a few general observations, and by a description of the proceedings preliminary to appointment. The Examination Papers have been taken from the same Reports, and the work has been prepared from the most recent documents (in some cases issued whilst the sheets were in the press), and from information kindly furnished to me by gentlemen in public offices.

I can hardly hope, however, that it is altogether free from mistake, though no pains have been spared to make it accurate, and readers who may discover any errors will oblige by communicating with the author [care of Mr. Stanford, Charing Cross, S.W.].

INTRODUCTION.

THE Home Civil Service of the Queen, not less than Her Service in India, has of late years been brought into a position to attract a good deal of public attention. Within the present reign the staff of many offices has been largely increased, and several new departments have been created. This, with competition, which has been the prominent point for discussion both in Parliament and by the press, has enlarged enormously the area of patronage. But, side by side with an increased power of gratifying by the bestowal of patronage, it would seem that the appetite for gratification has grown in keenness; for, although the scale of pay lags behind this golden age, it is said that the ministers' lists are usually full, and that it is as difficult now to obtain a nomination as it was formerly to obtain a place. This difference between nomination and appointment had until 1855 very little significance. In that year it became real, when a central authority was appointed, clothed with sufficient power to compel the exclusion of incompetent candidates. The Civil Service Commissioners have been brought into relation with every department of the State, giving more coherence to the Service and offering facilities for comprehensive improvements.

The term "Civil Service" is socially very ambiguous. It embraces as broad distinctions of rank as any other profession. Cabinet Ministers are in one sense Civil Servants, and so are those useful people who deliver our morning letters. Excluding high special officers on the one hand, and those who receive weekly wages on the other, Civil Servants may fairly be said to differ as widely from one another in social position as a lawyer's clerk from a Queen's Counsel. The rates of pay and kinds of work differ almost as widely, although the commencing salary is usually from

80l. to 100l. a year, and a young man before choosing the Civil Service in preference to other occupations, and before selecting a particular office, if he has a choice, should come to very clear conclusions as to his future position. To compare one occupation with another is not less difficult than important. The prospects are so uncertain, are so much influenced by causes difficult to see and difficult to estimate, and depend so much on what we call accident, that most persons probably adopt that which lies nearest to hand. Tradition governs many, education persuades others, pecuniary advantage influences a third class, and the advice of friends may embrace all these motives. The Civil Service is quiet. secure, not laborious; it has advantages in sickness and old age, for holidays, for freedom from anxiety, and the advantage of a net instead of a gross income. The social position of a Government clerk is superior to that of a clerk at the same salary in a commercial undertaking. The average pay is higher than the average pay in the Army or in the Church. On the whole, the young man or his friends who first understand the service and then distinctly select it, make, I should suppose, a very wise selection. The Civil Servant can have many physical and mental pleasures after his work is done, and the monotony of daily routine, and the slow increase of salary need not fall heavily upon him. But a man who is ambitious of money or a career will commonly be disappointed. though in a few instances he may win his way. The great danger of the Civil Service to a few candidates, and to more parents, is the commencing salary. The difference is great between the receipt and the disbursement of 100l. or more annually for some years, and the enticing bait cannot be rejected prudently by average men. On the other hand, those who are confident in their strength, or who love some other work for its own sake, should try for a higher To such, if they have the means, the reward is worth the risk; and whether they would acquire excellence in art or distinguish themselves in the Army or the Navy, at the Bar or in Commercial Pursuits, energetic industry is never lost, and often leads them to their end. So much for the few; and now let me point out to intending candidates that the variety of choice between different offices is very considerable. The various salaries, and some details as to vacancies, will be found in subsequent pages. Promotion is regulated mainly by seniority, and a candidate can form an opinion as to his prospects, by observing the sums attainable and the number of clerks in each class. The number of situations in the nature of clerkships to which candidates were nominated in the year 1864 is stated in the 10th Report of the Civil Service Commissioners to have been 768,* a number nearly equal to the number of gentlemen who entered the Army and Navy, or the ranks of Law, Medicine, or the Church.†

The question here arises whether this number is likely to continue; on the one hand, economy in administration will probably effect some saving, particularly by the employment of an inferior class of "writers;" on the other, as the population increases, public transactions become more numerous, and require a larger staff; and, further, an expanding civilization gives rise to new improvements, which demand new offices to carry them out. The Education Office and the Poor Law Board may be quoted as illustrations of the last remark, whilst the India Office and Mr. Gladstone's scheme as to local collectors of taxes, are in point to show how a growing tendency towards centralization absorbs existing officers within the pale of the Service.

Let me now briefly point out how situations are obtained. In the first place, then, a nomination must be procured from the holder of the patronage, either by the candidate personally or through some friend who has sufficient influence. Members of Parliament, especially those on the Ministerial side of the House, can usually obtain a nomination for one office or another, but they have no right to nominate, no patronage belongs to them. If the Minister accedes to the application, the candidate's name and address are set down in his list: but months or even years may elapse, especially in small offices, where there are few vacancies, before the actual nomination can be given.

I believe there is a prevailing impression that many situations are open to public competition. This error appears to have arisen from a total misunderstanding of the word competition, which may just as well be "close" or "limited" as "open." It has, indeed, been "open" in two or three instances experimentally, but is "open" as a rule only for the Indian Civil Service and for the situations of apprentice and "engineer-student" in the dockyards. In all other cases the competition is held between candidates who have been nominated, usually in a proportion of about three to each yacancy.

The effect of the nomination when obtained is to give the candidate a contingent right to an appointment,* which, if he succeeds in satisfying the Commissioners on all of the four points into which they inquire, viz. age, health, character, and knowledge and ability, as shewn in examination, becomes a vested right, but not before.

The examination follows a few days after nomination, and it may prove to be either competitive or simply a pass; every candidate, however, for a permanent appointment (in the nature of a clerkship)† should have made up his mind to take his chance in a competition, as that is the alternative which he will probably have to encounter. In some cases; the candidate is nominated to a preliminary test examination, and if he fails in this he does not proceed to the competition; and in all cases it is not enough to be a successful competitor, he must also have done sufficiently well in all the prescribed subjects to be adjudged to have passed in them.

On the subject of rejection I may observe that any candidate of average ability, who has even moderately prepared himself, may entertain a well-founded confidence that he will not be rejected. It appears from the 10th Report of the Commissioners that nearly all the rejected candidates were rejected for deficiencies in spelling, handwriting, or arithmetic, or their combinations; in other words, that only a very few who passed in these subjects were rejected for English composition, geography, Latin, &c. It may happen, however, that a candidate who passes a good examination, is surpassed by others, and so fails to obtain a situation. Disappointment is of course inherent in competition, but I believe it is not nearly so often as may be supposed the lot of deserving candidates; the proportion of competitors to vacancies is less than three to one; some, too, succeed in a second nomination, and probably a creditable examination would conduce to other employment. Assuming our candidate to have been successful as a competitor, and to have also passed, he is required to furnish reliable evidence as to his age, his health, and his character. A primâ facie case in these points is indeed a condition precedent to examination at all, for e.g. it would be useless to examine a candidate who was known not to be within the prescribed limits of age.

With respect to the subject of age, a general idea of the limits above and below which a candidate would be ineligible for the various offices is given in the following pages; there are, however, several exceptions with which it seemed to me unnecessary to encumber the text, the chief one being that an additional five years is in many cases allowed to those who have served continuously from a period when they were within the limits for the proposed appointments. The principal thing to be understood is that the limits are fixed (an established exception to a rule being of course as much law as the rule itself), and no arbitrary exceptions are permitted. The kind of evidence is indicated in the instructions printed at page xiv. On the subject of health, a candidate has to satisfy the Commissioners by proper certificates that he is "free from any physical defect or disease which would be likely to interfere with the proper discharge of his official duties." To prove that his character is satisfactory he has to give the names of two or more referees to whom the Commissioners may apply.

In all points he should remember that the burden of proof lies upon him; that he has to satisfy the Commissioners that he is fit for the situation rather than that they have to show his unfitness. When all these matters have been satisfactorily dealt with, the Commissioners grant a certificate to that effect, which is the authority to the department to employ and pay him, and without which he will not obtain the superannuation allowance on his retirement. If he chooses to be examined in any additional subjects, such as languages, mathematics, natural science, an honorary certificate is granted. according to his proficiency.

To complete this sketch of the points which will be interesting to a candidate. I have to add that the hours of work are usually from 10 to 4, in some of the higher offices from 11 to 5, and in a few from 10 to 5. The vacation varies in different offices from one to two months. The salaries given in the following pages are the salaries attached to the respective offices, but it cannot be always inferred with certainty that an individual receives only the pay of his class. Lastly, after 10 years' service, the Permanent Civil Servant, whose conduct has been satisfactory, comes into possession of a Parliamentary title to the benefits of superannuation. The sum allowed is one-sixtieth of his last salary for each year of service up to 40 years. It may be claimed at any time (after 10 years) in case of ill-health, and without ill-health at 60 years of age. The rule is perfectly clear, but it may be thus illustrated :-A gentleman enters the service at 20, serves till he is 50, and then retires on account of ill-health; suppose his salary is 600l., he will receive 300l. a year for the rest of his life.

EVIDENCE of Age to be Required from Candidates for Situations in the Civil Service of the Crown.

I.—Every candidate born in England or Wales after the 30th June, 1837, should produce a certificate from the Registrar-General of Births, Marriages, and Deaths, or from one of his provincial officers. This certificate may be obtained at Somerset House, or from the superintendent registrar of the district in which the birth took place.

- (a.) The declaration should specify precisely the date and place of birth, and should, if possible, be made by the father or mother of the candidate. If made by any other person, it should state the circumstances which enable the declarant to speak to the fact. If an entry in a Bible or other family record be referred to, the Bible or other record must be produced at the time of making the declaration, and must be mentioned in the declaration as having been so produced.
- (b.) If the candidate was born in England or Wales after the 30th June, 1837, the declaration must contain a statement, that after due inquiry no entry has been found in the books of the Registrar-General; or a separate declaration containing that statement must be made.
- (c.) N.B.—If no extract from any register is produced, the declaration must contain a statement, that after due inquiry no such record is believed to exist; or a separate declaration containing that statement must be made.
- (d.) Statutory declarations must be exactly in the form prescribed by the Act of 5 & 6 William IV. c. 62.
- N.B.—Clergymen, as such, are not qualified to take declarations.

- 5. The merit of the persons examined will be estimated by marks, and the number set opposite to each branch in the preceding regulation denotes the greatest number of marks that can be obtained in respect of it.
- 6. No candidate will be allowed any marks in respect of any subject of examination, unless he shall be considered to possess a competent knowledge of that subject.*

<sup>* &</sup>quot;Nothing can be further from our wish than to hold out premiums for knowledge of wide surface and of small depth. We are of opinion that a candidate ought to be allowed no credit at all for taking up a subject in which he is a mere smatterer."—Report of Committee of 1854.

- 7. The examination will be conducted by means of printed questions and written answers, and by vivâ voce examination, as may be deemed necessary.
- 8. The marks obtained by each candidate, in respect of each of the subjects in which he shall have been examined, will be added up, and the names of the candidates who shall have obtained a greater aggregate number of marks than any of the remaining candidates will be set forth in order of merit, and such candidates shall be deemed to be selected candidates for the Civil Service of India. They shall be permitted to choose, according to the order in which they stand, as long as a choice remains, the Presidency (and in Bengal, the division of the Presidency) to which they shall be appointed.
- 9. Selected candidates before proceeding to India will be on probation for two years, during which time they will be examined periodically with the view of testing their progress in the following subjects:*—

In these examinations, as in the open competition, the merit of the candidates examined will be estimated by marks, and the number set opposite to each subject denotes the greatest number of marks that can be obtained in respect of it at any one examination. The examination will be conducted by means of printed questions and written answers, and by vivâ voce examination, as may be deemed necessary. The marks obtained at each of such periodical examinations will be added to those previously or subsequently obtained. The last of these examinations will be held at the close of the second year of probation, and will be called the "final examination," at which it will be decided whether a selected candidate is qualified for the Civil Service of India.

* Full instructions as to the course of study to be pursued will be issued to the successful candidates as soon as possible after the result of the open competition is declared.

- 10. No candidate will be permitted to proceed to India until he shall have passed the final examination, and received a certificate of qualification from the Civil Service Commissioners, or after he shall have attained the age of 24 years.
- 11. The selected candidates who at the final examination shall be found to have a competent knowledge of the subjects specified in Regulation 9 shall be adjudged to have passed, and to be entitled to be appointed to the Civil Service of India.
- 12. The seniority in the Civil Service of India of the selected candidates shall be determined according to the order in which they stand on the list resulting from the final examination.
- 13. No person will, even after passing the final examination, be allowed to proceed to India unless he shall comply with the regulations in force, at the time, for the Civil Service of India, and shall be of sound bodily health and good moral character.—The Civil Service Commissioners will require such further evidence on these points as they may deem necessary before granting their certificate of qualification.
- 14. Applications from persons desirous to be admitted as candidates are to be addressed to the Secretary to the Civil Service Commissioners, Dean's Yard, London, S.W.

Note.—(1.) The Secretary of State for India in Council has authorized the Civil Service Commissioners to state that it is his intention to allow the sum of £100 for the first year of probation and £200 for the second year to each selected candidate who shall have passed the required examinations to the satisfaction of the Commissioners, and shall have complied with such rules as may be laid down for the guidance of selected candidates

(2.) All selected candidates will be required, at the commencement of the second year of probation, to attend at the India Office, to make the necessary arrangements for entering into covenants (binding themselves, amongst other things, to refund in certain cases the amount of their allowance in case of their failing to proceed to India), and for giving a bond for £1,000, jointly with two sureties, for the due fulfilment of the same. The stamps payable by civilians on their appointment amount to £3. 10s.

(3.) Candidates rejected at the final examination of 1868 will in no case be allowed to present themselves for re-examination.

EXAMINATION PAPERS.

EXERCISES IN HANDWRITING.

(A)-Used in Examinations which are not competitive.

Copy the following paper in your best Handwriting, or as much as you can in half-an-hour. N.B.—Good Handwriting is held to consist chiefly in the clear formation of the letters of the Alphabet.

According to the returns of live stock, there were 600,693 horses in Ireland in 1857, being an increase over the number enumerated in the previous year of 27,285; of which, 16,606 were horses used for agricultural purposes, 2,456 for traffic and manufactures, 2,469 for amusement or recreation: 1.779 were yearlings, and 3.956 under one year old. Cattle increased by 30,686 between 1856 and and 1857; the number returned in the later year being 3,618,544: of these, 1,602,908 were milch cows, 801,875 two years old and upwards, 616,015 were under one year old, and 597,746 were one year old and under two years. These last decreased in 1857 by 23,361 compared with the same class in 1856. Pigs increased 333,627 since 1856; the number for that year having been 918,525 and for 1857, 1,252,152. The increase is made up of 34,037 one year old and upwards, and 299,590 under one year. Sheep show a decrease of 245,618 in 1857, of which 119,391 were ewes, 41,714 tups and wethers, and 84,513 lambs. The decrease in sheep may. I conceive, be attributed to a satisfactory cause—their increased exportation, which is now so much facilitated by railway communication.

(B)—Used in competitive examinations.

Instructions as in Specimen (A.) Time allowed, one hour.

The following tabularized account of the admissions to the work-house during the last year, in comparison with those of the two preceding years, shows that the recent increase in the proportion of cases admitted in sickness is still kept up, and that the usefulness of the workhouses in their character of hospitals, both for acute and chronic disease, continues to be recognised by the poorer part of the population.

With regard to those poor persons who, having become destitute through sickness, or who, having contracted dangerous contagious disease, either resort to the workhouse for curative treatment, or enter it as a permanent asylum, it has always been the desire of the Commissioners to remove, as far as practicable, every prejudice against this form of relief which may exist, from any cause, in the minds of the lower classes.

DICTATION.

N.B.—In writing from dictation, candidates are cautioned, by a notice printed at the top of the paper on which they write, that "Attention should be paid to clear and legible handwriting, to correct spelling, and to proper punctuation."

The following extract from a memorandum sent to examiners in the country will show the method pursued in dictating:—

The examiner is requested to read over the passage marked "For Dictation," first, that the candidate may gather its general purport: a second time, slowly, that he may have ample time to write it down: a third time, that he may have an opportunity of correcting and punctuating what he has written. Ruled lines should not be allowed.

Cæsar did not live long enough after acquiring the sovereign power to rebuild the fabric of Roman polity which he had de-But a state which had long been torn in pieces by opposing factions, and in which life and property were exposed to constant risk, could find no repose except under one head. A bloody period followed his death, but the fortune of his name and family at last prevailed, and Rome and the world were happier under the worst of his successors than during the later years of the republic. The energy of Cæsar's character, his personal accomplishments and courage, his talents for war, and his capacity for civil affairs, combined to render him one of the most remarkable men of any age. Though a lover of pleasure, he never neglected what was a matter of business. He began that active career which has immortalized his name when he was forty years of age, a time of life when ordinary men's powers of enterprise are commonly deadened or extinguished. As a writer and an orator he has received the highest praise from the most competent critics. His "Commentaries," written in a plain perspicuous style, placed him in the class of those few individuals who have successfully united the pursuit of letters and philosophy with the business of active life. His projects were vast and magnificent: he seems to have formed designs far beyond what the ability of one man could execute, or the longest life could expect to see realized.

If the importance of the subjects of which it treats be any test of the interest of a science. Political Economy will be found to have the strongest claims on the public attention. It points out the means by which the necessaries, comforts, and enjoyments that constitute wealth may be most easily and cheaply produced; it ascertains the laws by which they are divided among the different classes of the community, and the mode in which they may be most advantageously consumed. Its intimate connection with all the best interests of mankind is consequently obvious. No other science comes so directly home to our everyday occupations and business. The consumption of wealth is indispensable to existence, but the eternal law of Providence has decreed that it can only be procured by industry—that man must earn his bread in the sweat of his brow. This two-fold necessity renders the attainment of wealth the principal object of the exertions of the vast majority of the human race; it has subdued the natural aversion of man from labour, giving activity to indolence, and armed the patient hand of industry with zeal to undertake, and perseverance to overcome, the most irksome and disagreeable tasks.

Such being the circumstances under which society is placed, the science which teaches how the production of wealth may be most effectually promoted, and which also unfolds the principles that govern its distribution, must certainly deserve to be carefully studied and meditated. There are none to whom it can be considered extrinsic or superfluous. Even the few who, having inherited ample fortunes, are exempted from any necessity of attending to the means by which they may be further augmented, must notwithstanding feel interested in many of the inquiries pertaining to this science. All of them involve considerations deeply affecting the well-being of numerous individuals, or of the public.

ORTHOGRAPHY—Misspelt Papers.

Along with each paper the following directions are given :-

Copy the following passage clearly and legibly, correcting mistakes of spelling and grammar, but not otherwise altering either the words or their order.

Time allowed, Three-quarters-of-an-hour.

The deth of gennaral Woolf was a nationnel missfortune, and acumpanyed with surcomstances suficently interesting to merrit a perticcular detale. He furst ricieved a shott in the rist, but, rapping a hankarchef round his hand, he incurraged his men to advance, without manefasting the least descumposure. He next ricieved a shott in the groyn, which he also conseled. Evan after the mortel bulet had pearced his brest, he sufferred himself riluctently to be caryed behind the rankes. Under all the aggonys of aproching disollution, his anxiaty for the risult of the battel continued unabbated, and when he was enformed that the ennemy were flieing on every side, "Then," exclamed he, "I dye happy!" and instently exspired, in a kind of pattryottic transport and inthusaisem, which seemed to defuse over his darkening countinence an air of exhultation and triomphe.

Woolf, at the erly aige of therty-three, to all the furvour of spirret, the libbarallity of sentemant, the humaneity, genarosity, and enlarged views of a hiero, unyted no inconsiddarable shaire of the presance of mind and milletarry skil which are neccessarry to constetute a consumet comander. He onely recquired yeares and opertunitys of action to ellivate him to an equallety with the most cellibrated gennarals of enney pearreod of hystery: to modarate his ardor, exspand his faccalties, and add to his entuative purception and sciantiffic knolledge the accuracy of judgment bistowed by expearance.

The French comander was not infearyor to his antaggonest in miletarry tallants. Though less fortunet in the last seen of his lyfe, he had often been vicktorius; and he made perhaps the most jeudisious aranjemants that forsite could sujest.

The smawl farmes, between five and ten akers, which abbounde in menny parts of Belieum, have much resemblense to the smawl holdings in Ireland: but wheil the Iresh cultevvatur exsists in a state of missurrebel privashun of the commun conveneanses of civveleized life, the Beljean pessant farmer injoys, comparritivly, a grate degree of cumfurt. His cottaje is bilt substancielly, with an uppar floar for sleping, and is kept in good repare; it has olways a smawl cellerage for the dairey, a stoar-room for the grane, an oven. a shead for pottatos, a roomey cattel-stall, and a loft for powltrey. The firniture is deasent, the bedding ampley suffishant, and an air of cumfurt and proppryety purvaids the whole establieshmant. The cows is supplyed with straw to ly upon; the premmisses is kept ecstreamley neet, with a constent hobservense of the most rigged eakonnemy, industery, and reggulairety. No membur of the fammely is evvar scene ragged or sluvvenley, but all are deasently cloathd, tho it be with the coursest metteariels. The men younivverselly wurk in linnen canvass froks, and both wimmen and men ware wooddan shoes. Ry bred and milk princeply constetuwt there diat. Mashd pottatos and uniuns, with occasiunnaly sleises of bakon, are the usuel artikals for dinnur. The grate supeariorety of the Beliean over the Iresh pessant farmer is owing not to anney adventejes of soyle or cleimat, but to a better sistim of cultevashun, and espeshally to estableshed habbets of sobbriaty, fourthought, and eakonnemy.

We have had allreddy sufishient occassion, dureing the coarse of this histery, to menshon the disspencing pouer of imprissonment, of eksacting lones and bennevolences, of pressing and quortering solediers, of alterring the kustums, of errecting monnopollies. These branchs of pouer, if not dirreckly oposit to the principals of all free guverment, must, at least, be aknolledged to be dainjerous to fredom in a monnarkikal constitution, where an ecturnel jellocy must be presserved agenst the suveran, and no disskreshonary pouers must evver be intrusted to him, by witch the proppertie or pursonel libbarty of enny subjecte can be effected. The kings of Ingland however had allmost konstantly exersised thees pouers; and if on enny occassion the Prinss had being oblidged to submitt to lause ennacted agenst them, he had evver, in practise, illewded theese lause, and reterned to the saim arbittrery administration. Dureing allmost three sentcherries before the accession of James, the reegal orthorety, in awl thees pertikelers, had never onse been kalled in questshun. Wee mai allso obssurve that the principals in general, witch prevvaled dureing that aije, was so feverable to monnerkie, that they bestoed on it an orthorety allmost abbsolute and unlimmited, sacredd and indefeesable. The meatings of Parlyment was so pricareous: there cessions so short, cumpaired to the vaccations; that wen men's eves were terned upwerds in serch of suveran pouer, the Prinss aloan was apped to streik them as the onely purmenent madiestrate, envested with the hole madjesty and orthorety of the stait. The grate complaissence two of Parlyments, during so long a pierreod had ecstreemly diggraded and obskewered those assemblys: and as awl instences of oposition to perogative must have been draun from a remoat aije, they had the less orthorety even with thoes who ware akwainted with them.

Bitwene the toune and the ramperts of the cittadle their is a fyne open spaice, planted with a variaty of trees, and ornamented with resservoires and fowntaines; and in the subberbs are menny nuly bilt and hansom terrasses. The city its self is ill layed out: its streats are narow and steap, and its squaires small and iregguler: but the houses are gennarelly good, and it is kept rimarkebly clene. The pubblic bildings are quite unwurthey of so considdereble a city. Their are sevaral chirches, but none of them dimand pertyculer noatice. The cathederel is destinguished from the rest onely by beeing larger and uglyer. A singuler looking porche, and a towar at three angles of the naive, are the principle exturnal feetures of this eddefice. Ajacent to it is the schole of medecin. ockepying what was formarly the bisshops pallece, an exstensiv manshion, with sevarel fyne appartmants. This schole, fownded by the Arrabs when they were drove from Spayne injoys a well diserved selebbraty as one of the best conduckted establieshments in the kindom; and is the soul rimaining rellick of the wonce rinouned universaty. It has a fyne amphytheater; an exammenation-hall, in which is an anteague bust of the founder of meddicle siance: a counsel-hall with pourtretts of proffessors from the erlyest pearyod, a library of therty-fyve thousend vollums, includeing menney edditions of the fifteenth sentuary, and numarus vallueble mannuskrepts in diffarant Uropian and Ashiattic langwedges; an exstensiv annatomicle mewseam, and sevaral spacious labborretories. The genaral hospetle has acomodation for upwards of six hunderd patiants, and there is also a large and well regulaited loonattic asilam.

Interim certior factus P. Sulla, quem discedens castris prefecerat Cæsar, auxilio cohorti venit cum legionibus duabus, cuins adventu facile sunt repulsi Pompeiani. Neque vero conspectum aut impetum nostrorum tulerunt: primisque dejectis, reliqui se verterunt et loco cesserunt. Sed insequentes nostros, ne longius prosequerentur, Sulla revocavit. At plerique existimant, si acrius insequi voluisset, bellum eo die potuisse finiri. Cuius consilium reprehendendum non videtur: aliæ enim sunt legati partes, aliæ imperatoris: alter omnia agere ad præscriptum, alter libere ad summam rerum consulere debet. Sulla, a Cæsare castris relictus. liberatis suis, hoc fuit contentus, neque prœlio decertare voluit. (quæ res tamen fortasse aliquem reciperet casum) ne imperatorias sibi partes sumsisse videretur. Pompeianis magnam res ad receptum difficultatem adferebat. Nam, ex iniquo progressi loco, in summo constiterant: si per declive sese reciperent, nostros ex superiore insequentes loco verebantur: neque multum ad solis occasum supererat temporis: spe enim conficiendi negotii prope in noctem rem duxerant. Ita, necessario atque ex tempore capto consilio, Pompeius tumulum quemdam occupavit, qui tantum aberat a nostro castello, ut telum tormentumve missum adigi non posset. Hoc consedit loco atque eum communiit omnesque ibi copias continuit.

Antiochus fled to Sardes, and thence to Apamea, the same night, hearing that Seleucus had gone thither before. He left the custody of Sardes and the castle there to one whom he thought faithful: but the townsmen and soldiers were so dismayed with the greatness of the overthrow, that one man's faith was worth nothing. All the towns in those parts, without expecting summons, vielded up themselves by ambassadors, whom they sent to the Romans while they were still on the way. Neither were many days spent ere Antiochus' ambassador was in the camp: having none other errand than to know what it would please the Romans to impose upon the King his master. They required no more than they had lately done, which was that he should quite abandon his dominions on this side of Taurus. For their charges in this war they required fifteen thousand talents; five hundred in hand, two thousand and five hundred when the Senate and people of Rome should have confirmed the peace, and the other twelve thousand in twelve years next ensuing by even portions.

At last when Romulus had reigned nearly forty years, it chanced that one day he called his people together in the field of Mars. When, all on a sudden, there arose a dreadful storm, and all was as dark as night; and the rain and thunder and lightning were so terrible, that all the people fled from the field and ran to their several homes. At last the storm was over, and they came back to the field of Mars, but Romulus was nowhere to be found; for Mars, his father, had carried him up to heaven in his chariot. The people knew not at first what was become of him; but when it was night, as one Proculus Julius was coming from Alba to the city, Romulus appeared to him in mere than mortal beauty, and grown to more than mortal stature, and said to him, "Go and tell "my people that they weep not for me any more; but bid them to "be brave and warlike, and so shall they make my city the "greatest in the earth." Then the people knew that Romulus was become a god; so they built a temple to him, and offered sacrifice to him, and worshipped him evermore by the name of the god Quirinus.—Arnold's Rome.

Tully was the first who observed that friendship improves happiness and abates misery, by the doubling of our joy, and dividing of our grief; a thought in which he hath been followed by all the writers upon friendship that have written since his time. Bacon has finely described other advantages, or as he calls them fruits of friendship, and indeed there is no subject of morality which has been better handled and more exhausted than this. Among the several fine things which have been spoken of it, I shall beg leave to quote some out of a very ancient author. How finely has he described the art of making friends by an obliging and affable behaviour, and laid down that precept which a late excellent author delivers as his own—"that we should have many "well-wishers but few friends." He says, "Sweet language will "multiply friends, and a fair-speaking tongue will increase kind "greetings. Be in peace with many, nevertheless have but one "counsellor of a thousand." With what prudence does he caution us in the choice of our friends, and with what strokes of nature (I could almost say of humour) has he described the behaviour of a treacherous and self-interested friend? He says, "If thou wouldest "get a friend prove him first, and be not hasty to credit him: for " some man is a friend for his own occasion, and will not abide in "the day of thy trouble. And there is a friend, who, being "turned to enmity and strife, will discover thy reproach." Again. "Some friend is a companion at the table, and will not continue "in the day of thy affliction; but in thy prosperity he will be as "thyself, and will be bold over thy servants. If thou be brought "low he will be against thee, and will hide himself from thy face." What can be more strong and pointed than the following verse? "Separate thyself from thine enemies, and take heed of thy " friends."—Spectator.

SPECIMENS OF PASSAGES FOR TRANSLATION FROM FRENCH.

C'est à vous que je m'adresse, mon cher Comte, pour vous écrire une des plus fâcheuses pertes qui pût arriver en France : c'est celle de M. de Turenne, dont je suis assurée que vous serez aussi touché et aussi désolé que nous le sommes ici. Cette nouvelle arriva Lundi à Versailles: le roi en a été affligé, comme on doit l'être de la mort du plus grand capitaine et du plus honnête homme du monde; toute la cour fut en larmes, et M. de Condom pensa s'évanouir. On était prêt d'aller se divertir à Fontainebleau, tout a été rompu: jamais un homme n'a été regretté si sincèrement; tout ce quartier où il a logé, et tout Paris, et tout le peuple était dans le trouble et dans l'émotion : chacun parlait et s'attroupait pour regretter ce héros. Je vous envoie une très-bonne relation de ce qu'il a fait quelques jours avant sa mort, après trois mois d'une conduite toute miraculeuse, et que les gens du métier ne se lassent pas d'admirer; vous n'avez plus qu'à y ajouter le dernier jour de sa gloire et de sa vie. Il avait le plaisir de voir décamper l'armée des ennemis devant lui; et le 27, qui était Samedi, il alla sur une petite hauteur pour observer leur marche: son dessein était de donner sur l'arrière-garde, et il mandait au Roi à midi que, dans cette pensée, il avait envoyé dire à Brissac qu'on fit les prières de quarante heures. Il mande la mort du jeune d'Hocquincourt, et qu'il enverra un courrier pour apprendre au Roi la suite de cette entreprise: il cachette sa lettre, et l'envoie à deux heures. Il va sur cette petite colline avec huit ou dix personnes: on tire de loin à l'aventure un malheureux coup de canon, qui le coupe par le milieu du corps; et vous pouvez penser les cris et les pleurs de cette armée : le courrier part à l'instant, il arriva Lundi, comme je vous ai dit; de sorte qu'à une heure l'une de l'autre, le Roi eut une lettre de M. de Turenne, et la nouvelle de sa mort.

MME. DE SÉVIGNÉ.

Napoléon était en ce moment exaspéré contre ses frères. Récemment, Louis avait jeté à ses pieds la couronne de Hollande; Jérôme, qui avait reçu le Hanovre en addition à la Westphalie, à condition de supporter certaines charges, n'avait pas rempli ses engagements, et il en avait été puni par le retrait d'une partie du Hanovre; Murat, bon mais léger et remuant, excité par sa spirituelle et ambitieuse épouse, avait cruellement déplu en dépensant trop, en négligeant sa marine. En outre, on l'avait accusé d'avoir sous divers prétextes parlementé avec les Anglais le long des côtes de son royaume. Napoléon en avait été irrité au point d'envoyer des instructions secrètes au général Grenier, pour que ce général eût toujours l'œil ouvert sur Naples et fût prêt à v marcher avec le corps de réserve qu'il commandait. Enfin on a vu quels emportements avaient inspirés à Napoléon les demi-trahisons du Cardinal Fesch. L'infortuné Joseph venait donc fort mal à propos pour exprimer dans les circonstances présentes des vérités désagréables. Napoléon lui avait fait dire que s'il voulait abdiquer comme Louis, il en était le maître : que ses frères pouvait tous quitter les trônes qu'il leur avait donnés, qu'il n'avait aucun besoin d'eux, que même cette conduite de leur part simplifierait bien des choses en Europe, que jusque-là cependant ils étaient non-seulement rois, mais généraux sous ses ordres, et qu'il n'entendait pas qu'ils désertassent leur poste sans l'en prévenir, sans recevoir son autorisation; que si lui, Joseph, se présentait à Bayonne sans ce préliminaire indispensable, il serait arrêté. The few people that inhabit Hungary live easily enough. They have no money, but the woods and plains afford them provisions in great abundance. They had been ordered to give us all things necessary, even what horses we pleased to demand, gratis; but Mr. W. would not oppress the poor country people by making use of this order, and always paid them to the full worth of what we had. They were so surprised at this unexpected generosity, which they were very little used to, that they always pressed upon us at parting a dozen fat pheasants, or something of that sort, for a present. Their dress is very primitive, being only a plain sheep's skin, and a cap and boots of the same stuff. You may easily imagine this lasts them many winters; and thus they have very little occasion for money. On the twenty-sixth we passed over the frozen Danube with all our equipage and carriages. We met on the other side General Veterani, who invited us with great civility to pass the night at a little castle of his a few miles off, assuring us we should have a very hard day's journey to reach Essek. This we found but too true, the woods being very dangerous, and scarce passable from the vast quantity of wolves that hoard in them. We came, however, safe, though late, to Essek, where we stayed one day in order to despatch a courier with letters to the Pasha of Belgrade, and I took that opportunity of visiting the town, which is not very large, but handsomely built and well fortified.—Letter of Lady M. W. Montague.

PRÉCIS OR ABSTRACT.

The following directions are placed in the hands of the Candidates, along with the Correspondence of which a Précis is required:—

Having read the accompanying Correspondence—

- 1. Make a short Abstract, Schedule, or Docket of the several letters.
- Draw up a Memorandum or Précis, i. e. a brief and clear statement of what passed, not letter by letter, but in the form of a narrative.

DIRECTIONS.

- (1) The object of the Abstract, Schedule, or Docket is to serve as an Index. It should contain the date of each letter; the names of the persons by whom and to whom it is written; and, in as few words as possible, the subject of it. The merits of such an Abstract are—(1) to give the really important point or points of each letter, omitting everything else; (2) to do this briefly; (3) distinctly; and (4) in such a form as readily to catch the eye.
- (2) The object of the Memorandum or Précis, which should be in the form of a narrative, is, that any one who had not time to read the original letters might, by reading the Précis, be put in possession of all the leading features of what passed. The merits of such a Précis are—(1) to contain all that is important in the Correspondence, and nothing that is unimportant; (2) to present this in a consecutive and readable shape, expressed as distinctly as possible; (3) to be as brief as is compatible with completeness and distinctness.

You are recommended to read the whole Correspondence through carefully before beginning to write, as the goodness both of the Abstract and of the Précis will depend very much on a correct appreciation of the relative importance of the different parts.

Brevity should be particularly studied.

The Abstract should occupy 1 page only, or 2 at the most.

The Précis about 2 pages, or 3 at the most, of ordinary handwriting

Time allowed, Three hours.

A CLASS-BOOK OF RUDIMENTARY CHEMISTRY. By the Rev. GEORGE POPE, M.A., Fellow of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, and one of the Masters of the College, Hurstpierpoint.

This little Work was intended for the use of the Compiler's own Classes at the College, Hurstpierpoint, preparatory to their using the text-book in 'Chambers's Educational Course.' Definitions and statements have, therefore, been put into the briefest and most dogmatic form, so as to allow of their being carefully stowed away in the memory for the purpose of familiarizing the mind with Chemical terms and processes of thought. Strict scientific accuracy has consequently been sometimes sacrificed to the necessity of imparting an idea.
